Scenarios:

- Andrew Gent: As a recent computer science graduate I would like to get a job at a tech company with a high reputation such as google. I would go about using the app by creating a schedule on a calendar while setting notifications. I would try to search for some entry level positions at companies like google. Based on my resume and settings I would be able to find the job that I am looking for.
- Jo Joe: I am a recent graduate with a degree in basket weaving and at the moment I am having trouble finding a job but then I stumbled upon an interesting app that assists one in finding a job. I looked through this app and found that it was able to easily filter jobs based off of my degree and experience. I'm not that great at using technology but this app is very simple to navigate and the first time opening the app it has guiding notes that help you understand the functionalities of the app
- James Alexander: I am a senior in college and I am worried that I might not be able to get a job right out of college because I didn't really get internship experience. I recently downloaded this app that helps me fix my resume by giving me a good template example and was very easy to find potential internships as well as being able to plan for important events.
